PERSIAN TREASURE

Description

Persian Treasure is a granite by Antolini, one of the industry leaders. Imported from Brazil, a country considered as one of the largest exporters of natural stones in the world. This exotic piece can be easily distinguished thanks to its large golden veining and black striations. Not only does Brazil offer its visitors a fascinating culture, its geodiversity, volcanoes and numerous famous rivers have resulted in the creation of a stone such as Persian Treasure that brings an eye-catching effect worthy of a masterpiece to anyone who is lucky enough to incorporate this Brazilian jewel to their home. This stone is more brittle than others, we do not recommend the antique finish.

In the course of the polishing process, an epoxy resin is applied to the stone's surface to fill part of its porosity (or pores) and natural cracks that may be apparent. This has no incident on the durability, the maintenance or the beauty of the natural stone. It is possible that certain pores are too small to contain efficiently the resin, and reopen during the finishing stages. However, this does not affect the stone's quality or beauty. Such as it is the case with many natural stones, it is recommended to apply a sealer to extend its beauty through time.
